

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
November 13, 2007

CONTACT: BRYAN BOWDISH
512-879-5112
512-590-2160
bbowdish@medicusins.com

MEDICUS EXPANDS RISK MANAGEMENT PROGRAM Medical Professional Liability Insurer Continues Steady Growth

AUSTIN, TEXAS – Medicus Insurance Company announced today that all its insureds can now earn continuing medical education credits and receive a discount of up to 5% on their renewal premium by completing risk management educational courses.

“Medicus’ state of the art risk management system allows physicians to do what they do best- deliver the highest quality healthcare to their patients without fear of legal action against them,” commented Dr. Bill Bailey, Vice President of Medical Relations with Medicus.

Physicians can learn more about the program by visiting Medicus’ web site at www.medicusins.com or calling Dr. Bailey at (insert 800 number)

The recent offering by Medicus is the result of its solid growth. Entering its second year, the company continues to underwrite more quality doctors and expand into new markets. Dr. Bailey and Jeff Weigl, Medicus Chief Underwriting Officer, developed the program to meet the needs of physicians and other health professionals who strive to provide better service to their patients.

“No one knows like another doctor the wound that medical malpractice issues can create. I joined Medicus to provide personal attention to our insured doctors as well as to help them lower their rates and practice better medicine,” Bailey said.

Courses are offered online for instant access, or in hard copy. Over thirty classes are offered in the area of patient safety and risk management. In addition to physicians- nurses and medical office professionals can also earn continuing education credits. Medicus’ insureds can log in at any time to review their course history or print certificates of completion.

Medicus currently insures doctors in Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Nevada, and Texas. The company was founded on the principal of offering physicians competitive rates and excellent coverage through its unique blend of medical leadership and insurance expertise.