

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 22, 2007

CONTACT: GARY MACK
630-357-7552
312-961-2467
gary@mackcommunications.com

MEDICUS BEEFS UP MIDWEST, SOUTHWEST REGIONS Malpractice Insurer Showing Rapid Growth

AUSTIN, TEXAS – Medicus Insurance today announced the appointment of two senior level staff signaling further growth in its portfolio of business. Jason Muesse, (27), has been named Southwest Regional Market Manager for the company while John Flanagan, (32), has been appointed Regional Market Manager for the Midwest. Muesse will work out of Medicus' Austin headquarters, while Flanagan will be based in Chicago.

Continued growth in the second year of the company's underwriting business, as well as plans to expand into new markets, necessitated creation of the new positions.

"We are very pleased to have these two knowledgeable individuals help advance our thriving company," said Sheldon Davidow, President of Medicus. "Both Jason and John will be able to deliver the top-notch service our agents and doctors deserve. They are an important addition to a senior staff that is one of the most experienced and knowledgeable in the medical malpractice insurance field."

John Flanagan brings over five years of practice in the professional liability industry to his new role as business development leader in the Midwest. Flanagan possesses a keen awareness of new business opportunities and experience in managing a broad number of physician liability accounts. Before joining Medicus, he worked for Arthur J. Gallagher Company as Division Assistant Vice President of Midwest Healthcare Practice.

Jason Muesse will take on the new responsibility of business development in the Southwest region after having worked at the company's headquarters in Austin since its inception. Muesse boasts a strong understanding of the medical marketplace having spent his early career at a Trauma Center Hospital.

"Medicus believes having these skilled managers in our growing markets will forge stronger relationships and provide better services for all our clients," said Howard Lamb, Chairman of Medicus.

Prior to these senior hires, Medicus retained Jeff Weigl in July of this year as its Vice President, Chief Underwriting Officer. Mr. Weigl joined Medicus after serving as Vice President of Underwriting for Pro Assurance in Washington D.C. for over 4 years.

Medicus currently insures doctors in Illinois, Texas, , Missouri, and Nevada. The company strives to provide physicians the ability to care for patients without worrying about their professional liability coverage.

Medicus Insurance Company offers malpractice insurance to physicians, surgeons and related medical service providers. The Medicus leadership team is comprised of medical leadership and insurance expertise dedicated to providing lower-priced malpractice coverage that supports and protects medical practitioners in today's complex health care environment.